

History & Nature

Named for its previous owners, the park was purchased in 1983 from the Henderson family estate and opened to the public on March 29, 1991. This was the first acquisition under the Save Our Coast Program, a land conservation program initiated by Governor Bob Graham in 1981. The Henderson family wanted the land preserved to protect the natural features of the area, and to provide the public with an opportunity to enjoy the surroundings.

The initial construction of the park included two picnic pavilions with restrooms, beach access boardwalks, an entrance station and park support facilities. In March 2000, 30 campsites, a bathhouse with restrooms and showers, camping area, playground and an additional beach access boardwalk were added to provide visitors with more access to the park.

A beautiful three-quarter mile nature trail was built through a partnership between the Friends of Henderson Beach State Park and the park. The trail now provides visitors with a rare view of some of the last remaining and endangered coastal scrub communities in the Florida panhandle.

Surrounded by Henderson Beach State Park, the U.S. Air Force maintains the Clausen Tracking Site. This site was installed in 1951 to provide national security programs and rocketry testing programs in the United States. Remnants of the original tracking installations can be seen atop the hill adjacent to the Air Force property along the nature trail. Today a larger version of this tracking system provides a landmark for visitors throughout the park.

Our family oriented beach is one of the areas most prized assets. Depending on the season, visitors' beach experiences could be highlighted by sightings of dolphins, sea turtles, migratory birds, butterflies and gorgeous sunsets.

Visitors may enjoy a leisurely bike ride on the park's mile-long paved road. Destin is known as the luckiest fishing village in the world. Visitors wishing to try their luck in the surf may catch popular species such as pompano, red fish, flounder, catfish, whiting and cobia. Bait and tackle can be purchased just outside the park.

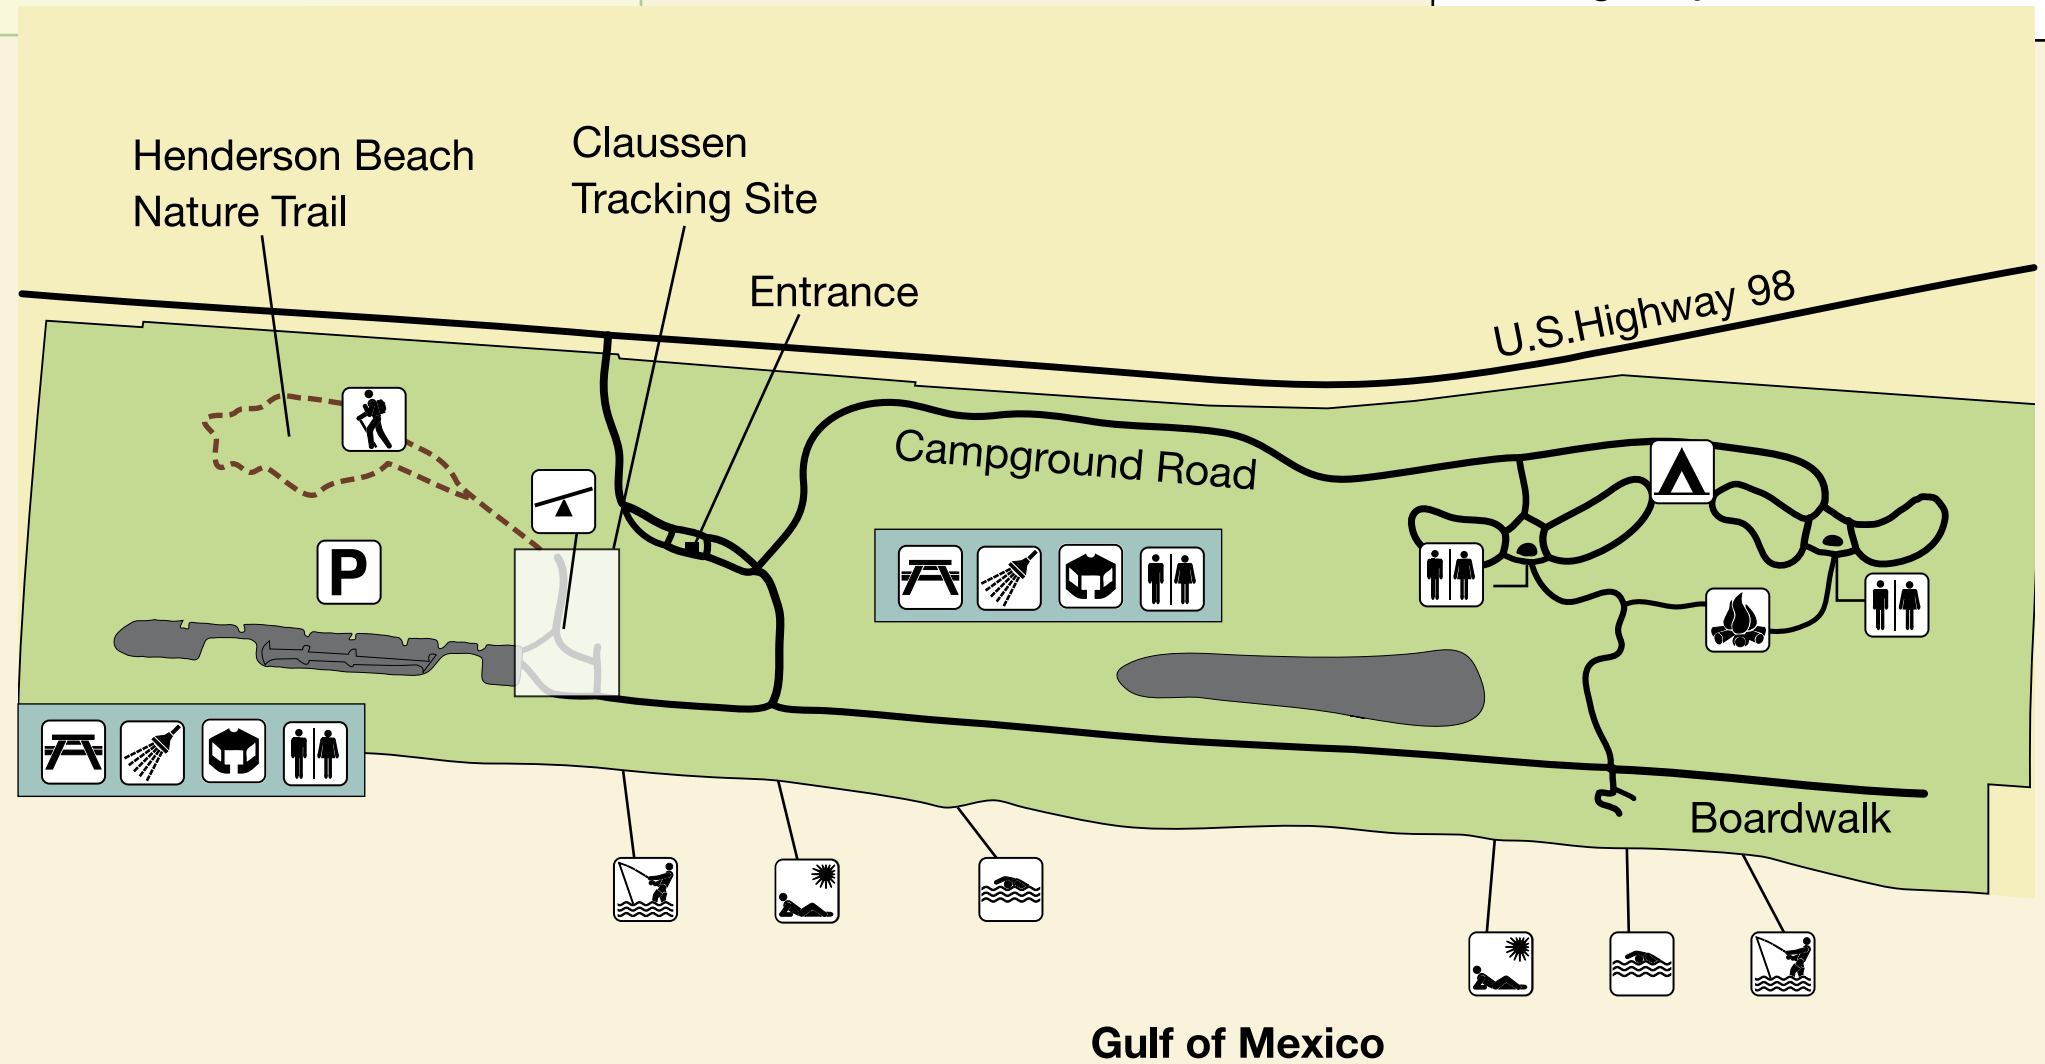

The park has 60 campsites that can accommodate either tents or RVs, with a mixture of back-in and pull-through sites. The sites have water, electricity (some 50 amp), picnic tables, ground grills and clothesline posts. Amenities include heated and air conditioned restrooms with showers, coin operated washers, dryers and vending machines. Unlike remote wilderness camping, provisions and restaurants are a short drive away.

The three-quarter mile pet-friendly nature trail meanders though ancient but still growing and shifting dunes, with vegetation known as coastal scrub. The trail provides a vista of the park, and in some places, the Gulf of Mexico.
